The Crops.

We select from our exchanges the following notices of the growing crop: Omo.-The Springfield Journal says "The wheat crop through this section of country never looked more promising, and we believe it is generally so throughout the State. It is the opin-ion of a great many that there will be bountiful harvest reaped this year." From the Circleville Watchman we learn that the wheat prospects are fine and bid fair for a great yield. On the clay grounds the corn crop will be a little short, but taken altogether there is no doubt but that there will be a full average crop.
